

60 Things I Learned in 59 Years

- Say your prayers.
- Love Jesus, He Loves You.
- Time heals all wounds.
- You will never get over losing loved one's who die but you will, in time, learn to live your life without them in it.
- If you watch your pennies, the dollars will take care of themselves.
- Apologize to people you hurt.
- Tell people you love, that you love them.
- Hugs make the world go around, give and receive hugs.
- Be open minded.
- Quit eating when you are full.
- Calming down is easier said than done, not just for you.
- Do not try to convince people to your way of thinking.
- Let other people have their way too, compromise.
- Go to church.
- Teach your children to do yard work.
- No matter the circumstances or how bad things may seem, it will indeed get better.
- Never interrupt a person while sharing a story. No matter who that person is or if you believe they are telling it wrong, it's their story.
- There is more than one way to accomplish a task. Let other folks do it their way.
- Set big goals for yourself and then set smaller goals to help you achieve the big goals.
- Life is not always fair.
- Cancer sucks.
- Foul language serves no purpose except to make the user look bad.
- Marriages are worth saving. Make an extra effort.
- Encourage others.
- Find a place to give back by volunteering.
- Volunteerism is it's own reward.
- Teach your children to do laundry.
- Work on being a better listener.
- This too shall pass (TTSP)
- Don't be a sore loser. No one likes a sore loser.
- Be happy for other people.
- If you can't say something nice, don't say anything at all.
- Technology doesn't provide close human companionship, people do, so turn off the device and talk to someone special.
- Diets can begin any day of the week.
- Just because you Can do a thing, doesn't mean you Should do that thing.
